GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

SEPTEMBER, 1955

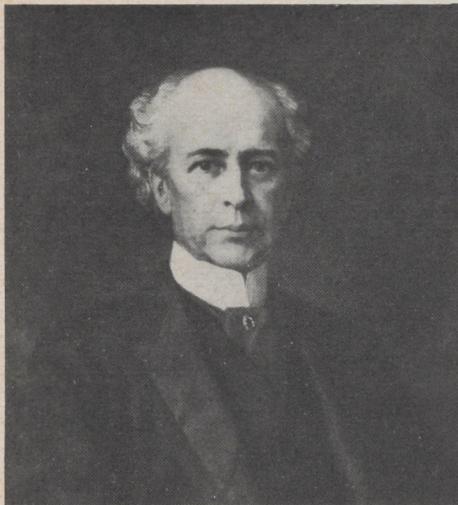

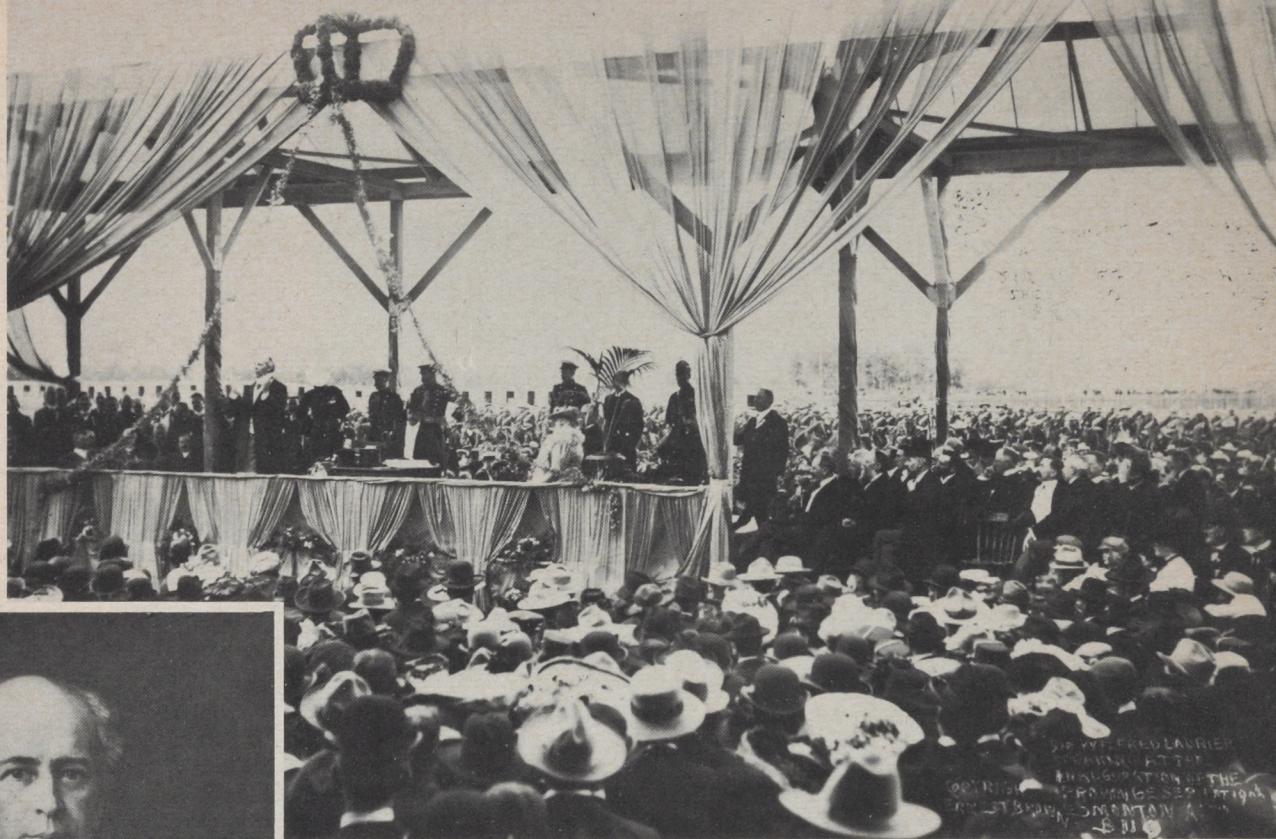

The day was bright and sunny, and thousands of people lined the streets to watch the parade of bands, singing school children, floats, automobiles and footman-attended carriages.

Inauguration Day, September 1, 1905

JUST fifty years ago, Alberta became a province of the Dominion of Canada. On September 1, 1905, twenty thousand citizens gathered at the Exhibition Grounds in Edmonton, designated capital of the new province, for the formal inaugural ceremonies. Among the illustrious speakers of the day were Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister, whose stirring address to the people of Alberta provided new fuel for the flame of determination and ambition burning in these province-builders.

Citizens of the new province listen with growing excitement to the picture of Alberta's future drawn by the brilliant statesman, Sir Wilfrid Laurier

EXCERPTS FROM THE INAUGURATION SPEECH

BY Sir Wilfrid Laurier....

"WHEN I look about me on this vast sea of upturned faces I see the determination of the new province. I see everywhere hope. I see everywhere calm resolution, courage, enthusiasm to face all difficulties, to settle all problems. If it be true everywhere, it must be more true here in this new province, in this bracing atmosphere of the prairie, that 'Hope springs eternal in the human breast' . . . it is necessary that we should have the hearty co-operation of all the people, of all the citizens of Alberta . . . the co-operation of the old settlers and pioneers . . . the co-operation also of the new citizens who have come from all parts of the world, I may say, to give to Canada, to give to Alberta, the benefit of their individuality, of their energy, of their enterprise. . . . Let say me to one and all of our fellow-countrymen, that the Dominion of Canada is in one respect like the kingdom of Heaven. Those who come at the eleventh hour will receive as fair treatment as those who have been in the fold for a long time. What we have we want to share with them, our land, our laws, our civilization. Let them be Britain's subjects, let them take their share of the life of this country, whether it be municipal, provincial or national. Let them be electors as well as citizens. We do not anticipate, and we do not want, that any individuals should forget the land of their origin or their ancestors. Let them look to the past, but let them look also to the future; let them look to the land of their ancestors, but let them look also to the land of their children."

The buildings of old Fort Edmonton stood just below the site of the Alberta Legislative Building.

Driving thousands of head of cattle from the United States, early ranchers established a flourishing beef cattle business on the rolling plains of southern Alberta.

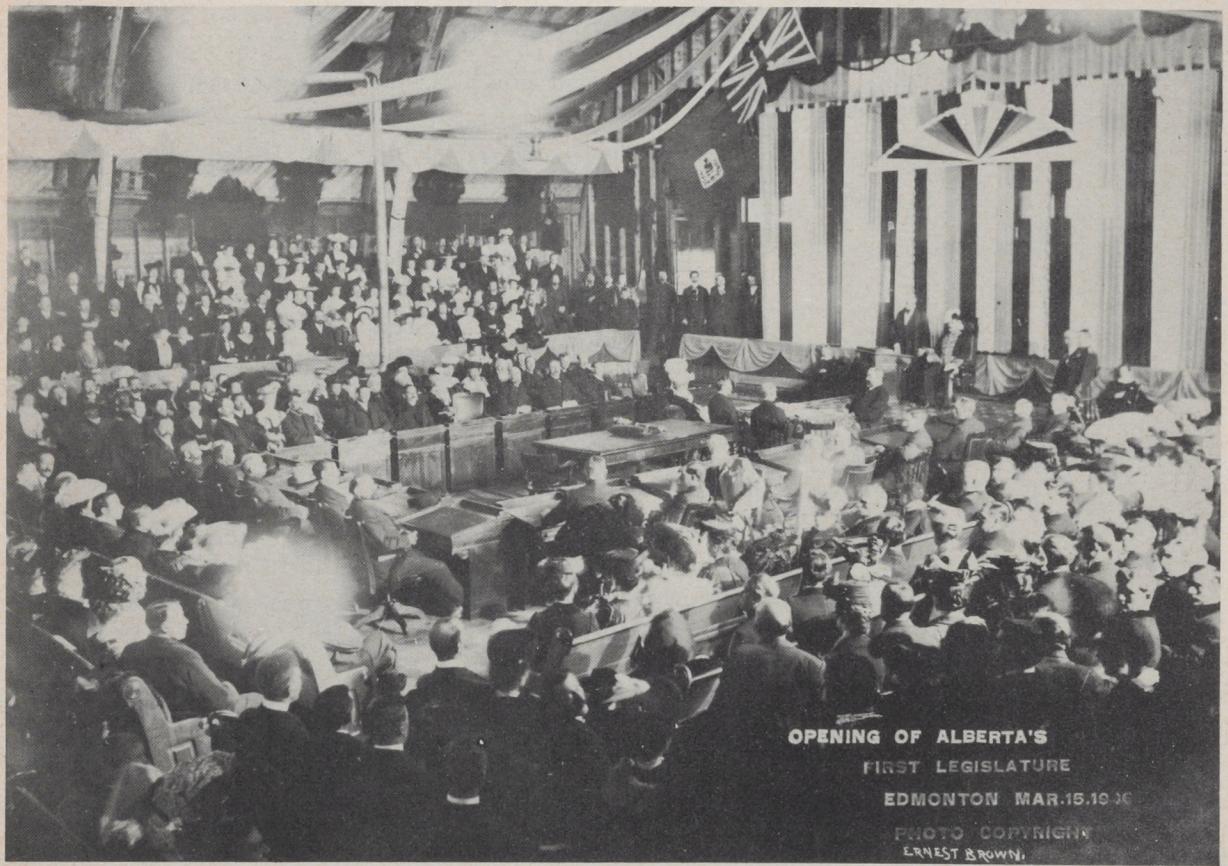

In many areas early settlers soon discovered rich seams of coal to be mined for local use.

A GLIMPSE OF THE PAST

The Saskatchewan River yielded gold in small amounts to the patient prospector in the early days.

Alberta's first Legislature was opened in the Thistle Rink, Edmonton, March 15, 1906, by Lieutenant-Governor Bulyea, with A. C. Rutherford as the province's first premier.

The rolling prairie, where, as late as fifty years ago, the Indians made their encampments, has now become rich and productive farmland, or the site for large towns and cities and industrial plants.

Methods of harvesting Alberta crops have changed radically in the past 50 years.

Fifty Golden Years

ALBERTA has reached the half-century mark as a Province of Canada. Like any person who has come to this point of maturity, the province pauses to look at its years and count its blessings with humility and satisfaction. In fifty years Alberta's population has grown from 116,000 to 1,024,000; agricultural production has leaped from an annual value of $16,428,000 to $619,368,000; industrial output has expanded from $5,000,000 in annual worth to $567,300,000.

As a young province, Alberta derived its riches entirely from the primary products of the soil; today, on its 50th anniversary, a wealth of natural resources lying beneath the soil has been tapped to release a new stream of productive energy. The view at the mid-century mark is still as limitless as the prairie horizon; expanding cities, the complicated structures of new petrochemical plants rising on farmlands near the stark outlines of drilling derricks, industries processing and marketing exciting new products, highlight the present and outline the future.

This Mounted Escort, of the 19th Alberta Dragoons in ceremonial dress last appeared in Edmonton on the occasion of the Royal Visit in 1939.

Inscription on this monument, which will be unveiled by Prime Minister St. Laurent:

CREATION OF THE PROVINCE OF ALBERTA

To this land of prairie, foothill, mountain and river, where the Indian roamed, came explorer, fur trader, voyageur, missionary, ranchman, farmer and railway builder. At points on river and railway, towns and cities grew. Within the North West Territories the battle for responsible government was again fought and won. The demand for wider autonomy led to the setting apart of the western portion of the Territories as the Province of Alberta, which was formally inaugurated on 1st September, 1905. Hon. G. H. V. Bulyea was the first Lieutenant-Governor and the Hon. A. C. Rutherford the first Premier.

Prime Minister St. Laurent will drive in the same landau carriage in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier rode to Inauguration Ceremonies in 1905.
